About CULTURE

CULTURE Society Incorporated was founded by anthropology students who want to make a difference. The combination of anthropology and activism enables CULTURE to work towards its goals of social change and justice by aiming to help the communities being directly affected by racism, discrimination, exploitation, and environmental destruction.

COMPOST STATION

INITIATIVE

CULTURE Society Incorporated is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization. For more information please visit our website.

Composting in Action!

Compost tumbler installed at SUNY Cortland's Child Care Center

How it works:

- We provide all the necessary materials and items to begin composting at your location
- We provide all the labor required for installation and assembly; the average installation time is three hours
- Each composting station consists of a compost tumbler, garden fence, gravel base, and donor plaque

How it helps:

- Children learn about composting, sustainability, and the importance environmental conservation
- Fully functional composting station that can be used to properly dispose of food scraps and waste
- Perfect addition to an educational garden or other outdoor learning activities for students

Work with us!

We are very excited to be able to offer this service and grateful for the opportunity to facilitate environmental conservation education. This is a very important topic, and allowing students to learn in a fun and hands-on way benefits everyone!

Contact us (info on back page) and provide us with important information such as:

- What type of facility are you? (Childcare center, school, etc.)
- What will you use the compost station for? (Lessons and composting, or just composting, etc.)
- Does your facility currently have a garden the students use, and if not, are you open to receiving a garden as well?
- Is your facility interested in receiving instructors to present on composting and environmental conservation?
